The present constitution s unsuited to our people, cumbersome, expensive and oppressive; it was therefore the duty of the press to convince the public and our Legislators of the necessity of amending it. Both did what it was their duty to do, and the only blunder was the delay, timidity and hesitation in calling the Convention, together with the apathy that was displayed by our friends after the call. The Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel thinks that Governor Vance ought to publish the names "of the leading men in Richmond-chiefly Senators and Representatives in the Confederate Congress" who requested him to make separate terms with President Lincoln to the Federal Government.

We concur with our Georgia con temporary in thinking that Governor Vance ought to give to the public the names of the parties referred to unless, indeed, his personal honor may be involved by some pledge to secrecy. Those parties sought to involve N orth Carolina in the humiliation and disgrace of first making terms with the scape-goat of their own wrong doings, and they ought to be exposed. WEEK ENDING THURSDAY September 2, 1875.

COMMERCIAL EPITOME .-- There is very little change to note in the general financial and commercial situation of our own city, but the week abroad No cause was assigned for the has been one of continued excitement and many failures throughout the North and West have occurred. monetary crisis , the result of the failure of the Bank of California, hashad the effect of exciting the financia market, and of course the approach ing fall trade is effected, but from appearances not very seriously. As the fall season approaches we see evidences of improvement in trade, but the volume is yet small for the

there is a slight improved tone notice able. The markets were generally steady with a fair amount of transactions in all branches. The cotton season is approaching, and in a few weeks the wharves will wear the appearance of life and activity.

The export movement, both foreign and coastwise, was large and the ship ments as compared with last week were as follows: Cotton, 23 bales; spirite year ago, and has since received coffin turpentine, 2,544 barrels; rosin, 11,942
